The data is stored using appropriate security measures to prevent access by unauthorized personnel and to guarantee its confidentiality and integrity.

The images contained in the video recordings are kept, for maximum 24 hours after the recording, except cases of special needs for further storage in case we have to comply with a specific investigative request made by the judicial authority or by the police. After this deadline, the images will be automatically deleted.

The images in real time are also visible on a special monitor inside the facility, which is used by the internal staff as a videophone.

The data subject (ie the person who believes to have been filmed) may exercise towards the controller all the rights provided for by Article 15 et seq. of the European Regulation. In particular:

- ask the controller to access the images

The right of updating or integration is not exercisable, as well as the right of rectification referred to in Article 16 of the GDPR in consideration of the intrinsic nature of the processed data (images collected in real time concerning an objective fact).

The right to the portability of the data referred to in Article 20 of the GDPR is not exercisable, as the images acquired with the video surveillance system cannot be transferred to other subjects (except legitimate public subjects).

The interested party may request to view the images in which he / she believes to have been filmed by showing, or attaching to the written request addressed to the data controller, appropriate identification documents.

The response to a request of access cannot include any possible data relating to third parties, unless the breakdown of the data processed or the elimination of some elements make the personal data relating to the interested party incomprehensible.

Once the aforementioned storage terms have expired, it will be impossible to satisfy the request of access.

You can exercise your rights sending a request by email to gdp@blf.it
